

How providing development opportunities can better prepare your emerging talent

As a manager, you have a responsibility to ensure your emerging talent is well-prepared for the challenges of the future. This can be achieved by providing them with development opportunities that help them to build the skills and experience they need to succeed.

Be clear when delegating tasks.	It's important to be clear when delegating tasks to your emerging talent. This means providing them with a clear understanding of what is expected of them, and the resources they will need to complete the task. Delegation is a key skill for managers, and it's essential to ensure that your team members are well-prepared to take on new responsibilities. What can help: Delegation, Leadership, Communication, Teamwork
Develop your leadership style.	Developing your leadership style is a key part of preparing your emerging talent for the future. This means taking the time to understand your own strengths and weaknesses, and how they can be used to lead your team effectively. Leadership is a complex skill, and it's essential to have a clear understanding of your own style before you can help others to develop theirs. What can help: Leadership, Management
Strengthen your presentation skills.	Strengthening your presentation skills is a key part of preparing your emerging talent for the future. This means taking the time to practice your presentation skills, and to seek feedback from others. Presentation is a key skill for managers, and it's essential to be able to communicate your ideas clearly and effectively. What can help: Delegation, Leadership, Communication
Be prepared when leading teams.	Being prepared when leading teams is a key part of preparing your emerging talent for the future. This means taking the time to understand the needs of your team, and to develop a plan for how to lead them effectively. Leadership is a complex skill, and it's essential to be well-prepared before you can help others to develop theirs. What can help: Communication
Build your confidence before leading a management task.	Building your confidence before leading a management task is a key part of preparing your emerging talent for the future. This means taking the time to practice your management skills, and to seek feedback from others. Confidence is a key skill for managers, and it's essential to be confident before you can help others to develop theirs. What can help: Leadership
Be better prepared for taking on a management role.	Being better prepared for taking on a management role is a key part of preparing your emerging talent for the future. This means taking the time to understand the challenges of management, and to develop the skills and experience you need to succeed. Management is a complex skill, and it's essential to be well-prepared before you can help others to develop theirs. What can help: Delegation, Leadership, Communication, Teamwork

